

There are no translations available.

Street Science is a series of five programmes that is aired on BBC radio 4, where experts explore their fields outside of their laboratories. On programme five, professor Tony Ryan, from the University of Sheffield, talks to people on the streets about nanotechnology, in an attempt to get them thinking about the science of the very small.